

Industrial Court gathers legal minds for symposium

Gerard Pinard, left, John Julien, Kimball Austin and Brian St Louis. PHOTOS: SEAN NERO

Industrial Court president Deborah Thomas-Felix and her team of judges continue to reposition the workings of the court through its Meet With the Court Symposium as witnessed on May 14, at the Port-of-Spain Ballroom at the Hyatt Regency Trinidad, on Dock Road, Port-of-Spain.

Now in its fourth year, the event aimed to facilitate a softer approach to engagement between the justices and stakeholders in an open forum.

Chief Justice Ivor Archie, Labour Minister Jennifer Baptiste-Primus and Her Honour Indra Demeritte-Francis, president of the Industrial Tribunal of the Commonwealth of the Bahamas were guests of the court at the event attended by legal luminaries and leaders of various arms of the trade union movement.

Getting key players on neutral ground to discuss issues considered key to the industrial court landscape, as well as generate meaningful discussions surrounding topics that reflect the current local social and economic climate, as well as the Caribbean was crucial to the court's mission.

Dr Everard Phillips and Antoinette Maund.

Robert Giuseppe, left, Lennox Anthony Marcelle and His Honour Herbert Soverall.

Industrial Court president Deborah Thomas-Felix and Ancil Roget, president, OWTU.

Industrial Court judges Gregory Rousseau, left, Albert Aberdeen and Larry Achong.

Kathy-Ann Alexander Fraser and Industrial Court judge Brian Dabideen.